To all Heads of State and Heads of Government

Your Royal Highnesses and Excellencies,

Now that climate change is recognised as real and inevitable, I would invite your consideration of how it will progress :

As the crisis takes greater effect upon a nation, its population will expect its government to act. When unable to respond, its society will begin to rupture leading toward an inevitable collapse. Such societal fracture in one nation will inevitably affect others.

This is the reason for the call for the Divine Rescue as outlined in previous communications, so that the Almighty might intervene to correct what the finest of governors cannot.

The urgency is that the crisis will take a sudden and chaotic- rather than a smooth and gradual - line of deterioration at the weather level. There will be no warning of when the first debilitating spasm will occur. The only certainty is that we will have to call for Divine intervention.

Your highnesses have a unique privilege greater than that of all of your predecessors : that of actually communicating with the Almighty to preserve the earth. This opportunity – there to be savoured – could yet be squandered through inactivity.

There is still the opportunity for a united call to the Heavens before the first spasms take place. As the remaining time is unpredictable and will be curtailed suddenly, I would ask your highnesses and excellencies to exercise their credence in God's purpose with all due haste.

With sincerity and respect, I stand at your service.
